Despite having been recognized as a "notoriously complex problem," training a nonlinear classifier in a fully distributed way can be done efficiently, using a sequence of closed-form steps.